Object & Brief-introduction

I am passionate about developing web applications, primarily using Java. While Java makes up about 70% of my coding tasks, I always keep an open mind toward learning new technologies across different platforms and operating systems. As a full-stack developer, I am also responsible for supporting users whenever the system encounters issues or when customers report problems. In my spare time, I enjoy immersing myself in new environments and cultures, whether by joining a Japanese class on weekends, taking online courses (such as on iTalki), working part-time outside of IT, or exploring areas outside of the city.
